

Salary Scale: £57,696 – £64,914 per annum

Professor Jackie Dunne

Birmingham Newman University is located on Genners Lane, Bartley Green, Birmingham, West Midlands, B32 3NT.

The university is named after the 19th century cardinal St John Henry Newman who wrote

The Head of Subject for Law and Criminology at the School of Business and Law, Birmingham Newman University, will lead and manage the well-established and highly respected subject area of Law and Criminology. This includes the disciplines of Law, Criminology, Policing, and Working with Children, Young People, and Families. The School operates within the Faculty of Arts, Society, and Professional Studies. In this role, you will collaborate with the Associate Dean (Business and Law) to enhance and expand the programmes within the subject area, as well as develop the academic portfolio.

Your academic leadership and vision will empower the team to achieve the University's key performance indicators outlined in its strategic plan, promoting growth, delivering an excellent student experience, and establishing meaningful partnerships with employers and other stakeholders.

You will work closely with the subject teams, the senior leadership team of the Faculty, and the wider University to enhance current provisions and build upon developments initiated during the comprehensive portfolio review. A critical aspect of this role will be to significantly increase student enrolment in the subject area by broadening the range of offerings, including developing sustainable postgraduate and undergraduate programmes, apprenticeships, short courses, and other relevant qualifications that meet current and future market demands.

The School is dedicated to fostering meaningful partnerships. As Head of Subject, you will lead the subject team in cultivating strategic relationships with relevant employers and organisations to support growth, student recruitment, and the overall student experience, thereby enhancing the University's profile.

In collaboration with the Associate Dean, you will ensure the efficient and effective leadership and delivery of teaching programmes in alignment with University strategy, policy, and procedures.

Birmingham

- : Engage in individual or collaborative scholarly projects, ensuring appropriate dissemination of outcomes.
- : Participate in knowledge generation, exchange, and transfer activities.
- : Keep abreast of developments in higher education and relevant disciplines to inform learning, teaching, and research strategies within the Faculty and University.

- : Provide academic leadership and line management to staff within programme areas, ensuring effective programme delivery through agreed work plans.
- : Contribute to team and individual development through the performance review process and advice on personal development.
- : Contribute to resource management, business, and programme planning within the Faculty. Undertake line management responsibilities as required.
- : Set standards and monitor progress against agreed criteria within the area of responsibility.
- : Participate in School-level and Faculty-level strategic planning and contribute to the University's strategic planning process.
-

	A good undergraduate degree in Law or a relevant subject area. A post graduate qualification in Law or a relevant subject area.	Application	Doctorate/PHD in a relevant field of practice or nearing completion	Application

Experience of developing, managing and leading academic programmes.

Experience of leadership and management of academic teams.

Knowledge of higher

All staff are expected to understand and enact the University's commitment to ensuring equality and diversity in all activities.

Applications should preferably be submitted by e-mail (as opposed to post) on the University Application Form and should be completed in typescript wherever possible. We only accept a CV as a supplementary part of the application process. Considerable emphasis is placed in the shortlisting process on how candidates demonstrate in their application that they possess the qualifications, experience, skills and qualities which are required.